

Change From Within: Diverse Perspectives on Domestic Violence in Muslim Communities (2007)

This edited volume is comprised of individual chapters containing a wealth of theological, clinical, sociological, legal, and practical resources by authors of diverse disciplines including Islamic scholars, social service providers, researchers, activists, and survivors. The authors explore the unique forms of abuse that Muslims face, and emphasize Islam's intolerance to domestic violence.

Brochure for Victims, Imams, Leaders & Community Members (2009 edition)

This detailed 8-panel brochure provides an overview of domestic violence, highlights Islam's stance against abuse, outlines strategies for victims and communities, and includes a regional and national resource section of domestic violence organizations for advocates and Muslim survivors.

Garments for One Another: Ending Domestic Violence in Muslim Families (2007)

Co-produced with FaithTrust Institute, this 1.5 hour documentary and comprehensive curriculum guide is a powerful tool for educating Muslim leaders, community members, and service providers alike. It includes interviews with many national leaders speaking out against domestic violence, such as Dr. Ingrid Mattson, Imam Mohamed Magid, Shaykh Hamza Yusuf, and Imam Zaid Shakir.

Our Mission

To raise awareness within Muslim communities regarding domestic violence, especially among the leadership and activists.

To culturally sensitize mainstream providers regarding the needs of Muslims.

To increase understanding of the Islamic stance on conflict resolution in marriage, within family relationships, and upon divorce.

To identify acceptable and effective interventions for domestic violence.

To build bridges between religious leaders and professionals in the field.

To identify commonalities and conflicts between Islamic and U.S. laws.

To conduct research and develop resources addressing domestic violence in Muslim communities.
